Parking Infringements

The Australian Road Rules provides a number of regulations for the parking of motor vehicles to assist with the safety of other road users, for example to give drivers a clearer view around pedestrian crossings, intersections and schools.

Where you park your car affects other people, whether it be a safety or obstruction issue. This is why Parking Enforcement Officers patrol in order for all to share the road safely and equally.

If you have received a parking penalty notice, you need to finalise the matter within twenty-one days to ensure that further action isn’t taken against you by the Revenue NSW.

There will be payment options listed on the payment slip.
